Award-winning health care provider Allaire Health Services is expanding its commitment to Morris County with the opening of Fallsview Rehabilitation and Nursing in Boonton. The new facility represents Allaire Health Services' third Morris County location.

"Fallsview completes our Morris County care trifecta," noted Allaire Health Services Senior Regional Director of Strategic Partnerships Kasia Bohaterewicz-Briody. "This exciting new facility joins Morris View Health Care Center and Morristown Post Acute in providing outstanding health care services to people from Morris County and beyond." Morris View Health Care Center and Morristown Post Acute are both 5-star quality rated by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.

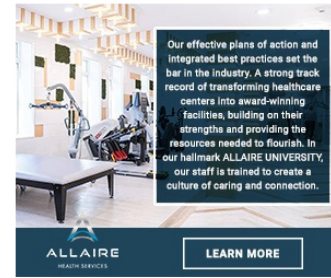

Bohaterewicz-Briody explained that Allaire Health Services is a multi-state, multi-facility organization that offers both post-acute and long-term care solutions in addition to expert clinical care in cardiology, pulmonology, wound care and nephrology. Special attention is offered to Alzheimer's and dementia patients. In addition, palliative and hospice care are also available. The company was recently recognized as a leader in health care services with the 2023 Newsweek Best Nursing Home Award. Allaire Health Services was the only Morris County facility honored in the survey.

"Our facilities provide options for Morris County residents to age in place, near family and friends. They are also accessible to major roadways, which also makes it easy for people from outside of Morris County to take advantage of our services," she said. "Our residents can choose the location and ambiance that will make their stay more convenient and comfortable."

In case of an emergency, seconds can make the difference. Having a loved one at the top nursing facility and under a minute away from the top hospital in New Jersey can make the difference between life and death.

Morris View Health Care Center is distinguished by spectacular views from its perch on the hills of Morristown and the new 117-bed facility at Fallsview occupies 7 acres in a quaint, farm-style setting.

Bohaterewicz-Briody commented that Allaire Health Services CEO Ben Kurland believes that it is important for residents to be able to choose where they get their care.

"Mr. Kurland goes above and beyond to make sure that the residents in our facilities have whatever they need," she added. "Ben's exemplary leadership was recently recognized by the Morristown Chamber of Commerce."

"Under Ben's leadership and with an intense focus on operational turnaround, Allaire has grown from owning and operating a single facility into being a complex, comprehensive multi-facility company that spans four states," said Meghan Hunscher, CEO and president of the Morris County Chamber. "With diverse experience working with hospitals, health systems, MCOs and multi-specialty physician groups, Ben provides leadership and direction to over 1,400 staff members and works to ensure that the facilities he is leading operate as a centerpiece of the community."

"I'm humbled and honored to receive the recognition from our Morris County peers and neighbors," Kurland said. "It is my privilege to serve the aging population in all aspects of care and ensure that the very people that build up these communities have every resource possible to continue aging in place and thriving."

Registered nurses (RNs), licensed practical nurses (LPNs), Certified Nursing Assistants (CNAs) and people from many other disciplines can find rewarding careers at Allaire Health Services.

One of the key components of Kurland's mission is the ongoing effort to recruit the Allaire Health Services team of health care professionals. Bohaterewicz-Briody pointed out that registered nurses (RNs), licensed practical nurses (LPNs), Certified Nursing Assistants (CNAs) and people from many other disciplines can find rewarding careers at Allaire Health Services.

"We are fortunate to have a team of dedicated professionals who love people," Bohaterewicz-Briody said. "As we grow and add new facilities like Fallsview, we also expand the opportunities for qualified candidates with all levels of experience to join us. Since we have many facilities spread across four states, we can offer a great deal of flexibility in terms of hours and work sites. Allaire Health Services hires full-time, part-time and per-diem team members. We provide training and we promote from within."
